

Hello, I am a long time bicycle commuter. Over the years i have logged many miles in several states and even two countries. Occasionally some motorists yell or act in a dangerous manner but these occurances are rare. It can be a very distrubing situation. Now we have evolved into a society that has radio personalities that advocate violence to we commuters. My fear is that people who in the past would never committ violence against a group, will now do so. Now they believe it is socially acceptable to act in a manner previously unthinkable. I think this awakening of the mob mentality is more than just a poor form of entainment but a dangerous practice that must be stopped. I side with others who think Clear Channel should have their licence revoked. I think this would deter others who advocate violence. thank you for your time.
